

ABSTRACT

A process for the production of allyl succinic anhydride comprising reacting a mixture of propene with maleic anhydride in the presence of a catalyst comprised of an alkyl tin chloride as provided.
5 The process can be run efficiently at temperatures below about 200°C without and the formation of polymer or decomposition by-products.